

Presents A Seminar On

Why You Cannot Ignore China

BY PHIL HARDING AND DICK DADAMO

China is the 700 pound gorilla that few are speaking about as the future dominant economic world power. Today, China is the focus of American outsourcing but is becoming the potential for the world's leader in consumer goods. What portion can be produced in the United States is one of the major issues. China has become the market where foreign companies want to be.

Our discussion will start by telling you some of the startling statistics of how China is overtaking the world economy. Then we will delve into the arena of international outsourcing and, more particularly, outsourcing to China. For most products, such outsourcing is a must but it is burdened in China with many problems such as Piracy and fraud, a weak banking system, and an awakening labor force overcoming insufficient human rights. The discussion is based on first-hand experiences with China. Our focus is on how things really are, rather than on how things should be, or are reported to be.
