@activejames - The Castro district is an AMERICAN neighborhood. It might be infesteed by Queers, but it does NOT belong to you. Remember a few years back, when the residents of the Castro district refused to have a youth center be built in the neighborhood? The reason was, it would bring down property values! in other

@mermaidsareppl222 - Queers are out to push their sick agenda into every facet of society. Their ultimate goal is to silence all dissent against them, including religion. They might even succeed in getting pastors and street preachers thrown in prison ( as we have seen in Furone) but the day they start a fight with the Muslims - well

VIDEO: Pro-Homosexual Advocate Destroys Traditional Marriage Banner in New York

Fellow us

TFP Student Action members were assaulted while peacefully demonstrating for traditional marriage in Fairport, New York, on June 2.

As young TFP volunteers stood at the corner of Main Street and Church Street with signs, a pro-homosexualist hurled himself against the group's thirteen foot long banner inscribed with "God's Marriage = 1 Man & 1 Woman." The banner, held by three volunteers, was knocked down and violently torn to pieces.

Case 3:09 cv 05456 BHS Document 213 1 Filed 06/29/11 Page 18 of 30

Pro-homosexual advocate violently tears up TFP banner in Fairport, New York.

The assailant also threatened to destroy the group's cameras used to document their campaigns for moral values. "I'll smash your camera," he said. Approaching another TFP volunteer who was holding a sign that read "Honk for Traditional Marriage," the aggressor said: "Are you going to give me your sign, or do I need to rip it up too!?"

Assault with glass bottle

In a separate incident at the same demonstration, another supporter of "gay marriage" threw a beer bottle at TFP volunteer Michael Shibler from a moving vehicle. The glass bottle hit him on the forehead, causing it to swell and bleed. Local police are investigating both incidents.

"These bully tactics do not even slightly dampen my resolve to continue promoting the truth about marriage in charity. Our cause is noble and we will win," said Shibler.

"Some say that same-sex 'marriage' doesn't harm or affect anybody. Well, I think my throbbing forehead is a good example of how it does harm people. Anti-family proponents would like to completely silence my first amendment right to free speech," he said. "While demanding tolerance for what they call 'diversity,' they are utterly intolerant of opposing viewpoints."

TFP volunteers and members of Citizens for a Decent Community joined forces in Rochester, New York, to defend true marriage.

On their tour for traditional marriage, TFP Student Action members are distributing flyers titled 10 Reasons Why Homosexual "Marriage" Is Harmful and Must Be Opposed. It calls on New Yorkers to firmly and peacefully resist the advance of the so-called gay-rights movement.

VIDEO: Pro-Homosexuals at Brown University Respond to Peaceful TFP Rally with Violence

Update -- 04-19-11: YouTube is still silent on the motives that led them to remove our video. However, we reposted the video on another server. The video documents how same-sex "marriage" advocates assaulted us and attempted to destroy our banner. Please forward it to all your friends. Post it. Share it. Blog it.

Update -- 03/29/11: YouTube removed our video of this campaign at Brown without any explanation.

Original Report

What we faced today at Brown University, an Ivy League university, had the flavor of a religious persecution. As we peacefully campaigned, about 250 frenzied prohomosexual students gathered to scream, spit, taunt, insult, assault, and even attempt to destroy our traditional marriage banner. Only with supernatural protection, and a strong police presence, did TFP volunteers manage to complete the campaign without serious injury.

On the front lines for traditional marriage

Situated in the heart of campus, Brown's central quad looked like a good spot to set up our campaign. As we strolled onto campus, the silence was shattered by a long, loud "Nooooooo, not at Brown!" After raising the American flag, TFP Standard and banner on the central quad, dozens of students gathered to take in the sight and snap photos on their cell phones. Also, one could not miss a large rainbow flag hanging from one of the

Case 3:09-cv-05456-BHS Document 213-1 campus buildings nearby. It was like a mini-Berkeley. Filed 06/29/11 Page 21 of 30

TFP volunteers assemble on the quad of Brown University to defend traditional marriage

Suddenly, a loud thud-rip noise was heard. I looked up and saw a pro-homosexual student literally crashing through our traditional marriage banner, attempting to destroy it. Running at top speed, he flung himself into it and ripped one side loose. Some students watching from a distance approvingly cheered the act of violence. Then two women kissed in front of our banner to the applause of liberal onlookers.

"Why are you here?" many students asked. We politely told them how the TFP was on a state-wide tour defending traditional marriage. They would just stand there in a sort of daze, and repeat the question again: "But why are you here?" Some of them just couldn't believe it.

Soon, two campus police officers asked us to move to the public sidewalk, forty yards away. We promptly complied with their request and continued the campaign on the intersection of Waterman and Brown.

Student: No objection to pedophilia

TFP volunteer Mr. Danniel Pribble debated with one pro-homosexual student, illustrating how the acceptance of homosexual vice leads to the acceptance of pedophilia. In fact, during a recent session in Canadian parliament, experts claimed that pedophilia is a "sexual orientation."

"What moral grounds do you stand on to oppose pedophilia, once you've accepted homosexual behavior?" asked Mr. Pribble. "You're right," answered the student. "I don't have any substantive objection with pedophilia."

More police officers arrived and playfully told Mr. Charles Sulzen, our bagpiper: "You can stay as long as you keep playing the bagpipes..."

Students repeatedly approached our members with the same comment: "You're very brave for coming here." Watching the out-of-control behavior of dozens of prohomosexual students, a gentleman on the sidewalk remarked: "They want tolerance. But they can swear, spit and scream all they want..."

As Mr. James Bascom distributed pro-family literature, a woman with a rainbow ribbon on her lapel said: "You're being so intolerant!"

"Why don't you tolerate us?" inquired Mr. Bascom. "So tolerance is a one-way street, then?"

"Yes, yes. It is," said the woman. It became amply clear that free speech at Brown University is not free and that the opposition would do everything they could to silence our message of truth: that marriage is between one man, and one woman.

He spat in TFP volunteer's face

Last week, pro-homosexual students held a protest against traditional marriage at the same location where we were now standing. Most of their signs included the word "equality." However, they clearly wanted to impede our right to equally assemble. "...They had their event last week," observed one of the police officers, "so what's wrong with your being here? I am totally with you."

By now, the number of pro-homosexual students increased to about 250. The pitch of their screaming intensified too, and in the chaos, one of our youngest volunteers, Zachariah Long, 17, was spat upon in the face. "What do I do with this on my face?" asked Zachariah. "Get it out of your eyes," said Mr. John Miller. He wiped the spittle off his face, then reported the incident to a police officer standing nearby. "Yea, I can tell," said the policeman. "It looks pretty bad. If you point him out to me right now, I will lock him up immediately." But the aggressor ran away. Patting Zachariah on the shoulder, the officer continued: "Let's file a report. We'll get him."

Approaching Zachariah, one student said: "Can I shake your hand? Because it takes a lot of courage to be out here." Another added: "This is great! But, I'm going to go right now before something happens. Keep up the good fight. Thanks for being here. It takes a lot of guts. It's really brave."

More debates...

Brown student: "Don't take their flier. The Catholic Church is against it."

TFP volunteer: "If you're Catholic, you'd know what the Church teaches. The 10 Commandments didn't change."

Brown: "No! That's outdated. Religion is just for the masses."

TFP: "Well, I guess you agree with Karl Marx."

Brown: "If you talk to Father so and so, he'll tell you that he's in favor of same-sex 'marriage.'"

TFP: "If he does, then he's not faithful to the teachings of the Church."

On the other side of the intersection, Mr. Leo Fitzsimmons, a TFP supporter, explained why marriage is important: "marriage produces children. And there's no future without marriage. Same-sex 'marriage' does not produce children." This simple reality befuddled the student who responded with profanities. "God bless America," responded Mr. Fitszimmons. The young student, who looked like an American, was so upset that she yelled, "I'm not American!"

Police escort to our vans

Seeing the violent attitude of the pro-homosexual students, the police chief wanted to escort us to our van and ensure our safe departure. After completing the 1 hour and 30 minute rally in its entirety, we prayed three Hail Marys, shouted our motto "Tradition Family Property – America" and left. Policemen surrounded us on all sides and were assisted by a patrol vehicle on the street. A rowdy group of approximately 250 pro-homosexual advocates attempted to break through the perimeter to harass us. Without ceasing, they screamed obscenities and yelled in chorus over and over again: "God loves gays!"

I never saw a more frenzied collection of students before.

Thank God, the police protected us as we packed our vans. But when we pulled away from the curb, many pro-homosexual students closed in to hit the sides of our vehicles with their fists or palms. A hard object, maybe a rock, was thrown against one of the vans.

Salve Regina at the feet of Our Lady

The International Pilgrim Virgin Statue of Our Lady of Fatima is visiting churches in Rhode Island, giving us the opportunity to see her on several occasions. After such an intense campaign at Brown University, we were able to pray at her feet once again and sing the Salve Regina. I could think of no better way to end the day.

The International Pilgrim Virgin statue of Our Lady of Fatima

"Are you with TFP Student Action?" asked a lady crossing the church parking lot with small children in tow. "Yes," I answered. "I'm following your tour, watching the videos, seeing what abuses you endure and I truly admire what you are doing. Your valor makes us so happy. And we love the bagpipes.

There may have been 250 people yelling at you today at Brown, but I want you to know that there are many more families like ours supporting you and praying for you. There are a lot of people following behind your tall banner."

Gathering her children around her, the lady continued: "These men are real Catholic men. They do what all Catholics should be doing. They are Catholic heroes. They stand on the street corners [for traditional marriage] and endure being spit upon and get things thrown at them. We need to give them our prayers and our thanks."

We thank Our Lady for granting us the grace to defend traditional marriage, certain that her victory predicted at Fatima will be accomplished: "Finally, my Immaculate Heart will triumph!"

Five minutes after we began campaigning on the waterfront in Newport, the police arrived and verified that our demonstration for traditional marriage was being conducted, as usual, in an orderly fashion on the public sidewalk. But it didn't take too long before a group of pro-homosexual individuals arrived, attempting to silence our free speech. They bullied us. They cursed. And they spat at us.

Free speech under attack

The Newport waterfront is lined with small, upscale shops and restaurants and other attractions and a fair amount of people strolled about enjoying the sunny, brisk sea breeze. When the TFP campaign started, the bagpipes attracted a lot of interest. They seemed to make the evening even more enjoyable for the families walking on the sidewalk. But the calmness of the afternoon did not last very long.

A man with a British accent approached, yelling: "Bigots! Haters!" He told TFP volunteers to go home and "get out of town." It was kind of strange to hear someone with a distinct foreign accent telling corn-fed Americans to go home. A while later, other pro-homosexual agitators spilled out of a restaurant to harass us. One of them physically pushed us, another attempted to rip our traditional marriage sign, and a third screamed and spat at us. Without exception, they all used obscene language and vulgar insults.

Hearing the pro-homosexual advocates hurling invectives, a puzzled pedestrian who was on the fence regarding traditional marriage, asked: "Did they just say what I thought they did?" TFP volunteer Mr. Charles Sulzen replied: "Yes, they did, we get that all the time." The insults instantly turned the undecided pedestrian into a traditional marriage supporter.

The police arrived and established some order. But even they were harassed by the prohomosexual advocates who insisted that our freedom of speech be silenced and that we be thrown out of town. It was fairly clear who was bullying who and the police allowed us to remain where we were as long as we wished. In fact, two police officers remained nearby for the duration of the campaign.

Newport, Rhode Island: Campaigning for true marriage.

You can't be both Catholic and Pro-Homosexual

Two emotionally charged parents stopped to discuss the issue. "We're good Catholics. Our son is gay and it's not wrong. You want us to hate our son?" A TFP volunteer explained how one must hate the sin, but love the sinner. "We must hate the sin, love the sinner and pray that your son returns to the path of virtue."

The parents disagreed: "No. We don't hate the sin. Our priest told us it's OK." "Catholic teaching is very clear. You cannot be a good Catholic and support homosexual acts," replied the TFP member. "Homosexuality is like abortion, it's part of the culture of death."

"No it's not. Abortion is a choice," said the couple and then began cursing as they turned away.

From yells to a handshake

Something unusual happened next. A young lady stopped to debate, using more insults and clichés than reason. When I first saw her, she was practically yelling. After about ten minutes listening to Mr. John Miller, I looked back and saw her shaking his hand in a friendly manner. Her attitude had completely changed. "Well, thank you for talking to me," she said. "I apologize for what I said earlier. I'm sorry. Now, I'm going to read your flier. Thank you!"

Please continue to pray for the victory of traditional marriage in Rhode Island, and for the TFP volunteers who are now traveling from city to city, campus to campus, defending God's law.

God bless you!

While TFP Student Action volunteers peacefully rallied support for traditional marriage at the New Jersey Statehouse on January 7, TFP member Elias Bartel, 21, was assaulted by a heavy-set woman wearing a blue "equality" t-shirt who tried to physically wrestle his pro-family sign away from him, interfering with his right to free speech. She left the scene as soon as she saw our camera in operation.

Later that day, traditional marriage won a resounding victory in the Garden State. The final vote in the State senate was 20-14, defeating same-sex "marriage."

Countless prayers, sacrifices, fasting, phone calls, and emails made the difference. And all those who helped usher in this big win for traditional moral values deserve our gratitude. When good people act, God intervenes.

@crystalrain379 - As stated, you keep your religious opinions to yourself in church and I will keep my lifestyle out of 'church'. However, reading below that gay pride events are constantly stormed with bible bangers, I doubt this is something the religious masses can commit to.

@rareflorence And how much did the Democratic Party pump into the gay rights movement?

StoogeWatcher 8 hours ago

Sure, Democrats don't want the Church taking over. The same liberals who slander Christianity support radical Islam and want to replace the COnstitution with Sharia Law. Ironically, the same liberals who claim to be champions of gay rights support the radical Muslim groups who kill gays.

StoogeWatcher 8 hours ago

I think it's time the government starts doing whats right regardless of what their told, instead of doing what their told regardless of what's right.

Because of bs like this, we are slowly becoming a theocratic government, run by close-minded fools. Not every mormon is like this, hell, not everyone with a religion is like this, thank god. But it's the externist that go so far to strip other people of their rights that are the true face of ignorance.

-- LOL. Please see my previous comment. What on earth makes you think I'm a Democrat. Again, I suppose just lumping everyone you dislike into one group is far easier for you to do than actually thinking.

BTW, my pastor laughed his ass off when I forwarded him your childish and prideful attempt to speak for all Christians. So did his husband.

@hanohanonacowboy You Democrats are total hypocrites. You smear Christianity and want to make it a hate crime, yet you defend Islam. You Democrats slander voters for not wanting Sharia Law. I guess Democrats support stoning rape victims, killing gays, and hanging apostates.

PROTECT AND PROMOTE RELIGIOUS RIGHTS AT OUR PUBLIC UNIVERSITIES

STUDENT STORY

Ruth Malhotra and Orit Sklar

Georgia Tech's speech code declared unconstitutional

Ruth Malhotra and Orit Sklar, unleashed all the worst furies of the Left when they stood up in support of their faith and their conservative views on the campus of Georgia Tech. The two united in their vocal opposition to the school's ironclad speech codes, which severely curtailed any student conversation, publications, events, or activities administrators arbitrarily deemed "intolerant." The codes banned free exchange of ideas except in very limited areas of campus, denied student activity funds to clubs and organizations that engaged in 'religious activities,' and officials even instituted a program, "Safe Space," designed to demonize anyone or any group that considered homosexual behavior immoral.

When Ruth and Orit asked the Alliance Defense Fund to sue Georgia Tech on their behalf, they found themselves mocked, cursed, defamed on posters, and threatened with rape and even murder. University officials offered virtually no protection or support, so outside police were assigned to protect the girls for the duration of their time on campus.

The young women's courage was rewarded when Georgia Tech became the first major university in the country to have its speech code declared in violation of the First Amendment – a crucial legal precedent that has forced other schools around the country to abandon their similar speech codes and free speech oppressions.
